Symbolism of Mahakala

The Protector's body colour is dark blue, symbolic of the changeless Dharmakaya. His three eyes symbolise his clear comprehension of the three times, and the vivid manifestation of the three bodies of Buddha. The crown of five skulls symbolise the five poisons - anger, desire, ignorance, jealousy and pride - transformed into five wisdoms. His six arms symbolise the completion of the six perfections - generosity, patience, morality, diligence, meditation and wisdom. the triku knife symbolises the cutting of ego-attachment. The skull bowl filled with blood symbolises the subjugation of the evil ones. The rosary symbolises his continuous activity for the benefit of beings. The damaru hand-drum symbolises his power over the dakinis. His trident symbolises his power over the three spheres - desire, form and formless. The lasso symbolises his action of binding those who break their vows. His two feet symbolise means and wisdom. That his left leg is straight and his right leg bent symbolise his accomplishment of benefit to self and others. He tramples on the Binayaka, to symbolise his destruction and dispersal of great obstacles. The sun on which he stands symbolises his illumination of the darkness of ignorance. The lotus seat symbolises purity undefiled by samsara. The blazing fire symbolises his action to consume neurotic states of mind. The tiger skin, purification of desire; the elephant skin, purification of pride; the snake, purification of anger. All his other ornaments symbolise that he has the complete qualities of the Buddha.

saying, "Now, I cannot benefit even one sentient being," Avalokiteshvara broke the vow he had previously made, and his body shattered into a thousand pieces. Then the Root Lama who by his vow always holds us in his compassion, the Noble World Protector, who has conquered and transcended, and because of his immeasurable light is called the Buddha Amitabha, vividly appeared and said:

"Son of my family, it is not well that you have thus broken your vow. Now you must replenish your broken vow, and make an even greater resolution to benefit beings."

The shattered body of a thousand pieces, by Amitabha's blessing, was united into one body with eleven heads and a thousand arms. Avalokiteshvara then thought that his previous great vow could never be exceeded. And yet by it he had been unable to benefit even a few beings. So for seven days he was unable to decide what to do. Then he thought that by means of a wrathful form he would be able to subdue the degenerate beings of this Age of Darkness. And, seeing many beings who practised Dharma and yet were unable to escape from the Bardo realms, he thought that by a wrathful form he could also protect them from the Bardo. And lastly, he thought that the beings in this Dark Age were poor and needy, experiencing only suffering, and that by a wrathful form he could provide them with an antidote to their suffering, so that their needs could be met by their simply making the wish.

With this three-fold activity, his vow became even greater than before. From the heart of Noble Avalokiteshvara emerged a dark blue HUNG letter, which transformed into the Instantaneous Protector of Wisdom. In all the Pure Lands, the ground shook with six kinds of earthquakes. The Conquering and Transcending One of Immeasurable Light and all the other Tathagatas of the ten directions proclaimed with one voice:

"Son of the family, it is well that you have made this resolution. You shall have the empowerment of all the wisdom dakinis. You shall have the strength of the wrathful Yama, Lord of Death. You shall have the mountain spirits, the yakshas, the devils and the demonesses as your messengers. You shall embody the great wrathful empowerments of the Body, Speech, Mind, Qualities and Activity of all the Buddhas throughout the three times." Ever since then, Mahakala has remained as the Doctrine Protector of all the Buddha fields.

Origin of Mahakala, the Dharma Protector Deity

At one time in the past, the Lord of Great Compassion, the Noble Avalokiteshvara, raised the Idea of Enlightenment, the Bodhicitta, and then for countless kalpas accumulated merit. After passing through the ten Bodhisattva levels, he received the special Great Light empowerment. Then, as he entered the ranks of the Noble Sons of the Buddha, he made this vow:

“Throughout the samsaric world realms in the limitless space of the ten directions, I will benefit beings. I must liberate all beings from samsara. Not until all beings are established on the level of Buddhahood, not even one left behind in samsara, will I myself enter Buddhahood. Only when all beings without exception have been guided to Buddhahood, will it be well for me to achieve it. Until then I will remain in samsara for the benefit of all beings. And to ensure it, may my body be shattered into a thousand pieces if I break this vow.”

From then on, Avalokiteshvara resided at the Potala Mountain. Through his limitless emanations, at every moment, he accomplished the ripening and liberating of innumerable sentient beings - to an extent beyond our means to express. And in this manner he passed uncountable years - many, many kalpas.

Then, at one time, he thought it possible that now he had delivered all beings from samsara. With his omniscient vision he looked, and saw that the realms of sentient beings had neither increased nor diminished. Not only had they not decreased in number, but now those sentient beings near him were in the Age of Darkness, and were even more difficult to subdue. Then secretaries and the entire body of secular and non-secular government officials along with the people and gods of the land of Tibet.

With single-hearted faith and reverence we take great joy in this prayer of supplication, wishing that its aims may be fulfilled accordingly.

It was translated into English by Gelong Jampa Gendun and Getsul Tenzin Chödrak at the Buddhist School of Dialectics, Dharamsala, during the autumn of 1985, in accordance with the explanation of Ven. Lobsang Nyima, Abbot of Namgyal Monastery.

Symbolic gesture of the Mandala offering with your hands

The practice of offering the Mandala consists of the ritual offering of the world, and all its wealth, to the Object of Refuge as an act of veneration.

The configuration of your hands contains the same meaning as the Mandala offering. The two fingers raised upwards in the centre represent Mount Meru.

The four corners formed by interlocking the other fingers, represent the four continents and you should imagine that all the wealth contained in the entire world is present in your hands.

When the offering is completed, if you would like to visualise those to whom you have offered the Mandala as happily accepting it, you should proceed to unfold your hands away from you.

If, on the other hand, you feel it is more appropriate to receive the blessings of the Object of Refuge to whom the offering is made, then you should unfold your hands towards you.

3. Praises in Reference to Enlightened Activity - Green Tara Visualisation

Tara represents the entire range of virtuous and enlightened activity and is therefore said to be the mother of the buddhas of the past, present and future - an attribute symbolised by the utpala fruit, flower and bud she holds in her left hand. The gesture of her left hand symbolises refuge while her right hand is in the mudra of giving highest happiness. She sits in royal posture on a white moon-disc resting on a lotus blossom. Her left leg is drawn upwards while her right foot rests upon a small lotus pedestal, showing that she abides both in samsara and nirvana. Tara wears the five silk robes and six ornaments, and in her tiara she bears the image of Amitabha. She is accompanied by the twenty-one forms of herself, 20 of whom float in the sky above her on rainbows and lotuses, while her other main form, White Tara, is found below.

11. Tara who Invokes: How Tara practice activates the ten direction Protectors

This practice invokes the protectors of the universe. These natural forces of goodness spontaneously respond to the goodness generated by meditation upon Tara. The wrathful lines on her face flicker and lights shine forth from the syllable HUM at her heart, giving total liberation from all forms of sorrow such as poverty and pain.

12. Tara of Auspicious Brilliance Praising her head Ornaments
 Tara's visible head ornament is a crescent moon, like that on the first day of the month, radiant with the light that eliminates sorrow. On her hair-knot sits Buddha Amitabha, who emanates a constant stream of light to fulfil the needs of living beings.

13. Tara who Bestows Maturity: Tara's Wrathful Posture
 Just as the fire at the end of time blazes with the heat of seven suns and easily consumes the earth and stones of the world, the wisdom fires in which Tara sits consume easily the myriads of delusions, the foes of the Trainees joyously following a spiritual path.

14. Tara with Vibrant Lines of Wrath: The Syllable HUM which emanates light
 Twitching the lines of wrath on her face. Stamping upon the earth in a ferocious manner with her right foot. She holds her right hand in the threatening mudra and emanates lights from the Syllable HUM at her heart, filling the seven dimensions of the world with light and bringing them under her power.

15. Tara of Virtuous and Creative Serenity: Praising Tara's Dharmakaya Aspect
 This verse is in praise of the mind and speech factors of Tara's Dharmakaya aspect.

16. Tara Destroying of Grasping: The Peaceful and Wrathful Mantras
 The ten syllable mantra refers to the root mantra OM TARE TUTTARE TURE SOHA. HUM indicates the wrathful mantra - OM NAMA TARE NAME HARE HUM HARA SVAHA. By the power of these two mantras one destroys the enemies of liberation - grasping at a self within and clinging to substantial existence in the external world.

6. Totally Victorious Tara: How Worldly Gods Worship Her
Tara represents the beyond-samsara state to which even the great gods of the universe still aspire.

7. Tara who destroys Negativity: How Tara crushes External Threats

Sitting in a peaceful posture, her right leg symbolises the wisdom of emptiness and left great compassion. She presses upon the three realms of the world her body blazing amidst darting flames. Although this is a peaceful emanation of Tara, externally she is slightly wrathful. To symbolise this she sits in the centre of a raging fire.

There are seven verses in praise of Tara's wrathful Sambhogakaya forms:

8. Tara who Heralds Supreme Power: Tara's excellence in Removing Mara and the two obscurations

The great fearful one are the ferocious army of Maras. Her lotus face is marked with lines of wrath and her manner is that of a wrathful Bodhisattva destroying the enemies within: the obscurations of delusion, which obstruct the attainment of liberation from samsara: and the obscurations to knowledge which obstruct the attainment of omniscience. Tara practice destroys both of these obscurations together with their seeds.

9. Tara of the Rosewood Forest: The symbols in Tara's two hands

Holding the stem of a lotus at her heart between the thumb and middle finger of the left hand, her remaining three left fingers are stretched upward into the mudra of the Three Jewels.

Her right hand, held in the mudra Supreme Generosity, is adorned by a wheel of truth that radiates forth waves of light to outshine the lights of samsara.

10. Tara who Dispels Sorrow: Praising Tara's Crown and her Laugh

Her head-crown emanates a garland of lights to outshine all others. Laughing with mantric laughter she utters TUTTARA, bringing all Maras and the eight great gods of the world under her control.

Verses in praise of Tara's symbolic attributes

The verses in praise of the symbolic attributes of Tara's being has two parts.

1. Praising the aspects of her Beatific Form (Sambhogakaya)
 2. Praising her Wisdom or Truth Body aspect (Dharmakaya)
- Tara has two main types of Beatific Forms: Peaceful and Wrathful.

There are six verses in praise of her Peaceful forms:

2. Tara of White Lustre

This verse describes the brilliance of the Beatific Form of enlightenment.

3. Tara of Golden Hue: Her Hand Postures

Whose colour is blue tinged with a golden radiance. The finger of her left hand holds the stem of a water born lotus, the flower of which has opened into bloom beside her ear. This symbolises how Tara embodies the Ten Perfections.

4. Victorious Ushnisha Tara: How Tara is revered by Buddhas and Bodhisattvas

Because Tara is the mother of all the Buddhas they carry her upon the crowns of their heads as an ushnisha. She symbolises the very forces that have the power to gain total victory over negative events of this life as well as over the obscurations of delusions and obscurations to omniscience.

The Bodhisattvas of the ten stages, who are completing the Ten Perfections must also fully rely upon Tara for she embodies the utter fulfilment of the Ten.

5. Tara who Resounds the sound HUM: How she overcomes Disharmonious Conditions

The syllables TUTTARA and HUM that she utters, together with the syllable HUM at her heart, symbolise the wisdom of emptiness combined with the great compassion. With her two feet she presses down upon the seven realms of the world, thus invoking all forces and placing them in joy.

The seven worlds refer to the three lower realms (hell creatures, ghosts and animals) the realms of man and the desire gods and the realms of the gods of form and formlessness.

THE TWENTY-ONE VERSES OF PROSTRATION AND PRAISE

These fall into three main sections.

1. Praising by means of the legends associated with Tara.
2. Praising the symbolic aspects of her manifestations.
3. Praising her enlightened activity.

1. Praises in Reference to Legend - Tara the Heroine

The homage is made to Tara, who was born from the tears of Avalokiteshvara, the Bodhisattva of Compassion, embodiment of the mercy of all Buddhas, a protector of all beings in the realms of desire, form and formlessness who arise as an "I" based upon samsaric aggregates.

It is said that once the Bodhisattva of Compassion became dismayed on seeing that, even though he had striven with all his might to free the sentient beings from samsara, the number of the beings suffering in samsara was not significantly decreasing. He burst into tears and from the pool that formed from the water issuing from the lotus eyes of the Compassionate Bodhisattva there sprung forth a lotus. From the lotus appeared Arya Tara, whose exquisite face embodies the delicacy of a million lotus blossoms.

Thus the compassion of all Buddhas emanated as a fountain of enlightened energy, Arya Tara, divinity of mystical activity who turned to the Bodhisattva of Compassion and said "O noble one, I offer myself in the service of freeing countless sentient beings from the cyclic existence as quickly as possible. Shed no more tears. We shall work together to turn the battle against samsara". Then a net of lights shone forth from her two eyes and scanned the three realms of the world.

2. Praises in Reference to the Symbolic Aspects - The Twenty-One Taras

There are twenty-one different Sambhogakaya manifestations of Tara, a feminine emanation of the primordial Dharmakaya Buddha Amitabha.

Each form of Tara embodies a particular aspect of compassion. Green Tara represents the active energetic aspect of compassion, and she is the national protectress of Tibet, while White Tara, for example, embodies the fertile, motherly aspect of compassion.
